CHANGE THROUGH TRANSFORMATION

Introduction

People affected by the change have to agree with or at least understand the need for change and to be involved in the planning and implementation. Face-to-face communications to handle sensitive aspects of organizational change is a preferred strategy to use.

Resistance to Change

Change is inherently unsettling for most, but when it is on the horizon, people look to management for strength, support and direction. The leader must embrace change first, then challenge others, motivate & create acceptance. They must speak in unison while modeling the desired behaviors in others.

Outcome

Leaders of large change programs must out-perform during transition and become the “Change” that promotes transformation. This requires more than mere buy-in or passive agreement - It demands ownership by leaders within their area of influence & control.
